General Instructions:

1. This paper is divided into four sections: A, B, C and D. All the sections are compulsory.
2. Separate instructions are given with each section and question, wherever necessary. Read these instructions very carefully and follow them faithfully.
3. Do not exceed the prescribed word limit while answering the questions.

Section A ( Reading ) 20 Marks

1. Read the passage and answer the questions that follow.

More Freedom for Greater Responsibility

1. Parents and teachers are always complaining about how irresponsible young people are these days. At the same time teenagers strain against restrictions imposed on them. While parents fear that teenagers, if given freedom, will misuse it, we feel frustrated that we need to be bound by so many rules. Perhaps the solution lies somewhere in between.
2. We wish parents and teachers started trusting our judgment more. As teenagers, we should not be protected from the harsh realities of the world. There are so many people of our age who are forced to fend for themselves. While we are fortunate to have a more sheltered life, we should also be given the freedom to understand the adult world and what it expects of us.
3. It is also time grown-ups realised that having fun is not necessarily a bad thing. Going to watch a film with friends one evening or a day spent reading a book instead of studying will not result in any great harm, but will definitely help us in the long run by opening our minds to the larger world. It would be helpful if young people are taught to understand their limits, or how much of something is good for us.
4. Adolescence is also a time in our lives when we start developing our own outlook about things around us. We become closer to friends and people nearer our age. Adults should encourage these firm friendships instead of worrying about how distant we are from them.
5. To instill greater understanding of what freedom means, parents should perhaps also allow teenagers to take small jobs, which is common in many countries. This would be better than restricting them to monthly allowance. A job teaches us responsibility about spending and saving money—a life skill that everyone needs. Rather than scolding us for the occasional extravagance, it would be more useful if we were made responsible for managing our own expenses, especially for activities such as buying the latest comics or sharing a pizza with friends.
6. We might slip up and make mistakes. But to err is human. We all make mistakes. We should be given the opportunity to learn from our failures and take responsibility for them instead of being taken to task. It is important to point out, though however, that there should be checks and balances to freedom. Freedom without restriction can also have serious consequences. Who hasn't heard of promising youth going astray, including losing focus on studies? At the same time, we should remember that giving freedom does not mean removing safety net to catch someone if they slip up. A lot of teenage offenders have slipped through social nets and have had no one to watch out for them. Overall, it may be better to give teenagers more freedom, but with limits, to help them blossom into more responsible adults.

Answer the questions in brief.

- i What are the developments which take place in the phase of adolescence? (1)

2. Read the passage carefully.

1. Travelling is a very pleasurable activity, especially for the young and the young at heart. The desire to see new places, meet new people is heady feeling.
2. It opens the windows of the mind, widens the horizons and makes one more tolerant towards others... to be able to accept the, and their points of view, for what they are. The more one travels, the more experience s/he gathers. These are wonderful lessons of life that stand in good stead whenever required.
3. It is not necessary to travel in foreign countries in order to experience the diversity of culture and people. Our own country is so vast and diverse...I am sure fulfilling experiences can be gathered and cherished while travelling the length and breadth of our land.
4. Another big advantage of travelling is that it makes the person self-dependent. There are no parents or grandparents for shelter and comfort...on a journey, whether for work or pleasure, decisions have to be taken, and things have to be done. And, in the face of diversity, the real mettle of the person comes forth. It is then that the person gets to know what s/he capable of facing problems and getting the better of them? Or, is s/he a dependent person who needs others to decide and implement those decisions?

5. If I could gift something to all the people who are close to me, I would gift them a possibility of travelling to another place... that is far from their own comfort zones and picket fences ... since, this is not feasible, I can only advise to start a journey inwards... into one's own heart and mind. This inward travel will spring up surprises that one may not be prepared for!... and one will definitely get to know one's mettle and worth.

I Opened a Book

*I opened a book and in I strode
Now nobody can find me.
I've left my chair, my house, my road,
My town and my world behind me.
I'm wearing the cloak, I've slipped on the ring,
I've swallowed the magic potion.
I've fought with a dragon, dined with a king
And dived into bottomless ocean.
I opened a book and made some friends.
I shared their tears and laughter
And followed their road with its bumps and bends
To the happily ever after.
I finished my book and out I came.
The cloak can no longer hide me.
My chair and my house are just the same,
But I have a book inside me.*
